

Google This! Yad Vashem Archives Going Online

Children in the Warsaw Ghetto, women awaiting selection at a concentration camp and families before and after World War II are among the images from the archive of Yad Vashem—the Jerusalem-based Holocaust Martyrs' and Heroes' Remembrance Authority—that can now be found through a simple Google search (above image of survivors after liberation near Pinsk, Belarus).

A partnership between Yad Vashem and Google has made some 130,000 captioned photos viewable in full resolution online, either through Google Images or through Yad Vashem's site (www.yadvashem.org). Viewers may add their own comments to the photo pages. To donate a photograph, send a scan to holocaust.resources@yadvashem.org.il with as much information as possible and full contact information. —Esther Hecht
